foraus.de is the BIBB Internet portal for trainer support

www.foraus.de

The information portal foraus.de offers trainers the most important information of significance for day-to-day training in the company. The information reaches the portal members via three channels:

- up-to-date news items in six categories: current events, publications, eLearning/digital media, best practice, competitions and tenders, meetings
- a newsletter that is sent to subscribers once a month
- the service area where visitors to foraus.de can find information, links and sources relating to publications, institutions and associations, further and continuing education opportunities, eLearning and media databases as well as addresses of interest for online research on training issues

Communicating

Community and forums

With the foraus.de community, members have a modern and user-friendly platform at their disposal for discussions with other trainers as well as experts in the field. Registered users of the portal can introduce themselves to the other members with their own profile page in the community and communicate with one another through a Private Messaging System. Theme-specific forums enable members to participate in group discussions.

Learning centre

The online seminars offered provide another opportunity for sharing experience. A new learning module is published for each online seminar in the so-called learning centre, giving an introduction to the subject and referring to further reading. There are now 24 learning modules and a module system, "Action and Process Oriented Training", available for free continuing education through a learning platform integrated into foraus.de.

Focal topics

In this area you will find information on focal topics that are of current or prospective importance for training personnel. The information provided here is meant to give a compact overview of the relevant thematic area. Additional links and information are meant to encourage users to delve more deeply into the subject matter or to network with the current discussions in the relevant forums of the trainer portal. It all started with the topics of vocational guidance/transition management and the new Ordinance on Trainer Aptitude (AEVO).

AF Media Shop

The "Ausbilderrförderung (trainer support)" field of activity in the Federal Institute for Vocational Education and Training – AF for short – offers concepts and continuing education and training materials for the vocational teaching practice of the training personnel. These materials are arranged transparently according to focal topics in the AF Media Shop and can be ordered directly from the BIBB's partner publisher.
